And this may in part explain my having the balls to write these books. I have also been a poor father, an unfaithful husband, and a raging alcoholic—all of which I deeply regret. However, by honoring my mistakes and failures, I've managed to find my truth. No matter who you are and what you've done, know, you can too. Will you find your personal truth in the too-much-information age? In fifth grade, my class was told, it was likely none of us would ever have an original idea. After reading it Instead of just being left with a head full of information. I had a head full of curiosity and a different view of myself and others. I am thankful in "the too-much information age" that I was somehow able to come across this book. Its helped me know myself better and for me there is no greater gift then that.
